Here's what our advertisers say about the Arizona Jewish Post:

"Pastiche Modern Eatery just celebrated its 10th birthday, and we have been advertising in the Arizona Jewish Post for over 10 years. A coincidence? We think not. The readership of the Arizona Jewish Post is not only loyal, but is vocal. The Post's subscribers let us know that they are patronizing our restaurant and that they are pleased to see Pastiche's advertisements in this publication. And, since the Post's cost is so reasonable, we feel we get a lot of bang for our buck!"

Patrick and Julie Connors, Owners, Pastiche Modern Eatery

"The Arizona Jewish Post has won the loyalty, respect and trust of its readers and that means our Post advertising is well received.

The readers view the Post as an important part of their lives, not just another newspaper. The time they spend with the Post pays off for its advertisers. We are able to reach a large audience in a very cost-effective manner and see consistent results."

Bill Viner, President, Pepper Viner Homes

"We have been fortunate in our relationship with the Arizona Jewish Post. Advertising within its pages has contributed to continued success of the Cup Café, Copper Hall and Hotel Congress. The Arizona Jewish Post helps us to support a core base of our patrons and introduces us to new potential guests who may not be familiar with us and with downtown Tucson. The publication and staff have always been professional, helpful and personable. They have been supporters of our businesses and have referred many guests to our doors."

Steve Dunn, Manager of Cup Café at Hotel Congress

Here's what some of our readers say about Tucson's only Jewish newspaper:

"We always rejoice when your wonderful paper arrives at our home in Forest Hills, N.Y. It is a warm and comforting link to our 'second home,' which we love each year for two winter months. It is not often that I read the ads as attentively as I do the editorial pages and essays of varied interests, but I do in your fine publication. Thank you for building a bridge of understanding between the local community and thousands of 'snow birds' who come to Tucson and neighboring areas every year."

Ruth B. Melchet, Forest Hills

The Arizona Jewish Post is a great way for me to not only market elle, but also support a vital resource for the Jewish community. The AJP has allowed me to be creative with my advertising and promote specials for the Jewish holidays, which are always well received by the readers. The readers are extremely loyal to my restaurant and I enjoy their visits."

Jeff Fuld, Chef/Owner, elle wine country restaurant

"I advertise in the Arizona Jewish Post because the paper enables me to reach a very large percentage of my customer base here in Tucson. The Post readership's direct response to our advertising has always been wonderful."

Bob Couchman, Owner, La Contessa

"For 22 years, advertising in the Arizona Jewish Post has been an integral part of my marketing strategy. Advertising in the Post has brought great returns for my advertising dollars."

Burt G. Derman, CFP, Assistant Branch Manager, Wachovia Securities

"Advertising in the Arizona Jewish Post has proven to be a worthwhile investment of my advertising dollars. The demographics of the readership make it the obvious choice to advertise my event planning business, which does more Bar and Bat Mitzvahs than anything else, and my social invitation business. Measuring the effectiveness of advertising can be a bit intangible but more often than not, when prospective clients mention seeing my ads it is the Arizona Jewish Post ads they are referring to."

Jennifer Miller Grant, Owner, Settings Complete Event Management

"Thank you for what is probably the best, and most beautiful, Jewish community newspaper published in the U.S."

Rhoda Lewin

"I must write and tell you how much my wife, Ruby, and I enjoy the paper. We have very many interesting discussions concerning the stories written in the paper. Keep up the good work."
